Drawings

New corrected drawings are required in this application because figures 4, 5, 11 and 14 are not descriptive (units and labels) by themselves. Applicant is advised to employ the services of a competent patent draftsman outside the Office, as the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office no longer prepares new drawings. The corrected drawings are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. The requirement for corrected drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

1. Claims 6-8 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Newman, US 5,208,911, dated September 28, 1990, and further in view of Trueblood US 5,463,702, dated July 14, 1994.
2. As per claim 6, Newman et al., hereinafter Newman discloses that one of the aspects of the invention includes the step of generating at least one multidimensional table containing the sample values of the composite transform definition (Col. 3, lines 10-20). Also Newman discloses in Figs. 4 and 7 a method for compressing the image data that contains multidimensional lookup table (LUT) and transforming the coordinates to identify the color of a single pixel of the image.

It is noted that Newman does not explicitly disclose compression of multidimensional lookup table, however, this is known in the art as taught by Trueblood. Trueblood discloses a method to truncated to 6 bits per primary color (compression from 8 to 6 bits) see Fig. 5A.

Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to incorporate the teaching of Trueblood into Newman because Newman discloses a method of image processing systems employing look-up tables for transforming from first coordinate space to a second coordinate space. And Trueblood discloses the compression of lookup table with an identifier to store the LUT, in order to increase its display capability or to save memory space or to be able to transfer faster from different locations, the compression of LUTs are essential

3. As per claims 7 and 8, Newman discloses one of the aspects of the invention includes the step of generating at least one multidimensional table containing the sample values of the composite transform definition (Col. 3, lines 10-20). Newman discloses in Figs. 4, 7 and 14 a method for compressing the image data that contains multidimensional lookup table and transforming the coordinates to identify the color of a single pixel of the image.

It is noted that Newman does not explicitly disclose compression of multidimensional lookup table, however, this is known in the art as taught by Trueblood. Trueblood discloses a method to truncated to 6 bits per primary color (compression from 8 to 6 bits) see Fig. 5A.

Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to incorporate the teaching of Trueblood into Newman because Newman discloses a method of image processing systems employing look-up tables for transforming from first coordinate space to a second coordinate space. And Trueblood discloses the compression of lookup table with an identifier to store the LUT, in order to increase its display capability or to save memory space or to be able to transfer faster from different locations, the compression of LUTs are essential.
